KITTENS TAKEN,
CAT TEARS BARS

CAT TEARS BLOOD
DERBY, Ct., May 29.—Because her kittens were taken from her, the family was lacerated terribly by the two-year-old son of Mrs. W. J. Francisco. The cat sprang upon the child, dug its claws into the tender skin and tore the flesh of his back and arm. The child's screams brought his mother, who beat the cat. While her back was turned, the cat sprang at her and kept up the attack until neighbors broke it up. Unmistakable.

SOLEMN SERVICES FOR KING EDWARD HELD IN CHURCHES OF BOSTON

Three of the leading churches in the heart of the city were crowded to the doors today as public worshipers gathered to pay tribute in memory of Edward of England.

The houses of these services were: Church of the Advent, Broadway street, 10:30; St. James' Church, School and Vermont streets, 11:00; St. Paul's, Tremont street, 12:10 p. m.

The service in St. Paul's was designed particularly for working people who could not get out at the usual hour. Clerks, shop girls, artisans and workers were given so that hundreds were made to get in.

The Church of the Advent, where Father John Connelley presided, was present, was likewise jammed. There was large attendance, also at St. James' Church. This being one of the oldest churches in the city and, anchored by its name, with typical memories, was a center of interest.

St. Clement's Clergyman Services. In the Church of the Advent the food and picnic were draped with the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes. British Consul General, Lord Curzon, Lieutenant Governor Frothingham, Commissioner Balfour and other officials accepted the food.

The churchmen proceeded to lead a service of prayer. The Rev. George J. Kerkham, rector of the Church of the Advent, presided. The service was a solemn requiem mass. JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN SUIT FOR LOST LOVE

The jury in the $50,000 alienation suit brought by Mrs. Emma F. Heath of Malden against Mrs. Sarah P. Merriman, seventy-two years of age, also of Malden, today reported to Judge Place in the Middlesex Superior Court, Cambridge, that it could not agree upon a verdict. The judge therefore discharged the jury and the case goes back to the docket for re-trial.

The case was given to the jury just after a week yesterday afternoon. Judge Place left instructions for a verdict of $50,000 or less, but no more, and the jury was to be sworn to find the verdict by a majority of nine.

At 10 o'clock today the jury came in and a jurorman handed the judge the following written question: "Is it proper for a jurorman to change his vote in order to prevent a disagreement, even though he believes that he is honestly right?"

"No," Judge Place answered after reading the question aloud. "If a man feels that he is correct he should vote that way. If he is not sure he should not vote at all. The judge said that the jury was to find the verdict by a majority of nine. It is not that it was a far more important question than a mere matter of dollars and cents. The jury was excused and went back to its room to continue the deliberation. At 1:50 the jury again filed into the courtroom.

"Yes," said the foreman.

CUSTOMS MAN SAYS BAKER IS STUBBORN

Major J. H. Hester, special deputy surgeon at this port, said today that John W. McDonald, the New York banker, whose family trunk he held for further examination at the appraiser's store, was "stubborn," when he was given an opportunity to revise his original declaration.

Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Kline and their daughter, Miss Dorothy Kline, arrived on the steamer. They brought five trunks and nine bags of luggage. In examining the trunks Inspector Hester found many articles which he deemed dutiable and which were not included in McDonald's declaration. Major Hester said to the effect:

"The trunk have been turned over to the appraiser for examination. Mr. McDonald was given an opportunity to revise his declaration, but he was very stubborn. The inspector told him he would have to have the trunks go to the appraiser's store for further inspection rather than to continue the examination on the wharf."

"There is no longer the amount of luggage allowed in this matter as was formerly the case and the traveling public has been informed. He is not to be allowed to take more than the Government has in mind. Many men who would not think it is a smart thing to beat the customs officer."

ALBANY TEST TO JOIN THE SCOUTS

W. W. Gibson, state secretary for boys of the Y. M. C. A., has worked out a craft plan whereby boys of the Y. M. C. A. Summer vacation camps may qualify to become scouts through making thirty out of a possible hundred points. These points are given the boys for activities in the material that goes to make up the good scout, such as discipline, character, observation, woodcraft. This is in line with the American Boy Scout movement.

The competition is open to all boys and the only condition on any one is that he make the required number of points out of the total, to show he is eligible to be listed among the Scouts.

It is likely that the summer camps will be inaugurated the first patrol of the Scout in Greater Boston. This, however, will be but the beginning, for the Scout movement has become Boston wide, taking in the boys in every section of the city. Organizations which are going into camp are giving the movement the initial boost, as their outdoor life this summer makes the opportunity a good one to try out the Scout idea.

Remarkable interest is shown by the boys in the preparation of the material, to organize the Boy Scouts in Boston. Many of them who are affiliated with boys' clubs are listing the names of their young friends in the boys in every section of the city. Scouts for boys, launched in Boston in 1907, are now being organized in all sections of the city.

There are other organizations in Boston which desire credit for their leadership. They are all these efforts to bring the boys into the Scout movement. The Scout idea is a good one to try out the Scout idea.

There are two kinds of washing powder—

Several so-called cleansing powders are only sal soda. You can buy sal soda at your grocer's under its real

Others contain naphtha, ammonia or some other liquid cleanser, which evaporates the moment the powder is exposed to the air, or touches hot water. Their much-vaunted virtues vanish like dew before the morning sun.

Gold Dust is the only true washing powder. It is a mixture of vegetable oil soap and purifying ingredients, which insure prompt and efficient cleansing action. It softens hard water, does its work quickly and well, and injures nothing.

GOLD DUST will do more work and better work than any other washing powder on the market.

There is but one all 'round washing powder—GOLD DUST. Ask for it, and take

A Poor Old Woman's Trickery Exposed

Useless Energy There. As Useful as Exposing the Trick in "The Lizard in the King's Stomach"

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Company

A cheerful, ingenious old Italian woman named Eusapia Palladino has made money, amused the wise and deceived some of the foolish—like they to be deceived—with so-called "spiritualistic demonstrations."

This pleasant old lady sits at the end of a table, looks solemn, holds the hands of the men next her, and, by and by, lifts the table, rings bells, agitates banjos and says that the spirits are busy.

This gray-haired old woman, amusing and mystifying grown-up children, was really a cheerful spectacle. She did no special harm. Only a child could have considered seriously the work that she was doing.

But "identical" grown men hid on the floor, crawled under chairs, watched the old woman's feet, and solemnly told that they had exposed "the great fraud."

Of course it was a fraud, but there was nothing GREAT about it. Madame Palladino has done, and will continue to do, for the globe what all the other so-called mediums have done, and will do, for many years.

She lifts up the table with her foot, or blows the breath out of the corner of her mouth, so that a wind seems to come from the top of her head. She wiggles a curtain, groans artistically, says, "Dis, dis," and enjoys herself.

Just why anybody should want to expose her or to interfere with her harmless entertainment it is difficult to understand.

In Africa they have witches of their own kind. And there is much competition among them.

When the African King is ill, the ambitious young witch doctor, who wants to destroy the old and successful practitioner, sees his opportunity. The young ambitious man says to the King: "Your Majesty is very ill. Your Majesty has inside of your royal stomach a good-sized lizard. It was put there by the old witch doctor, your enemy, who is trying to conjure you and kill you."

This, of course, frightens the King, and he says to the ambitious young doctor: "Prove it and you can do what you like with the old witch doctor's head."

Then the young witch doctor takes the old King into a dark corner, gives him a violent emetic, and later on shows him a young and active lizard and perhaps a couple of small turtles.

The old King, as simple as those that watch Madame Palladino, is convinced that the lizard and turtles really were in his stomach.

Off goes the old witch doctor's head, and the young ambitious man takes the lucrative job.

The tricks of the mediums, the fortune tellers and the other frauds are simply childish. They ought, perhaps, be stopped by the police when they take the form of extorting money from the ignorant and poor.

But they are certainly not worthy the attention of scientific men.

A man's "science" must be of the thinnest, feeblest, flattest kind if he really needs to crawl on his stomach to convince himself that it isn't true THAT A POOR, GRAY-HAIRED OLD WOMAN CAN CALL SPIRITS FROM THE OTHER WORLD AND PERSUADE THEM TO MAKE POOLS OF THEMSELVES BY HAMMERING ON A BANJO.

Kipling Writes on King Edward

It May Be a Pretty Poem, But It Is Not Accurate

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal Company

Rudyard Kipling, once a remarkably good writer—long ago before success made him self-conscious—has written a poem on the death of King Edward.

It is natural for Englishmen to be sentimental in discussing the death of the kind-hearted, good-natured King.

But Mr. Kipling is a little too enthusiastic in his praise.

It is far from accurate to say of the late King, or of any other modern ruler, "Our King asks nothing of any man more than our King himself has done."

This is a poet's way of saying that the King of England himself did EVERYTHING THAT WAS REQUIRED OF HIS SUBJECTS. That's not so.

The King did not go down in the mines and work in the dark, day in and day out, year in and year out, until he died.

Tens of thousands of Englishmen do that, in the coal mines, and the zinc mines—and if they didn't do it, England would collapse financially and there wouldn't be any salary for the King.

The King didn't live in Whitechapel in poverty and ignorance—hundreds of thousands of Englishmen do that, and they HAVE to do it under the English system—THE SYSTEM THAT PAYS THE KING'S WAGES AND THAT PENSIONS ALL HIS CHILDREN AND TAKES CARE OF HIS DISTANT RELATIVES AND FRIENDS.

The King didn't work hard from childhood to old age, with no better prospects at the end than a sad ending in the poor house—hundreds of thousands of Englishmen and women do that—AND THEY HAVE TO DO IT AS A PART OF THE ENGLISH SYSTEM.

King Edward didn't go down to Africa, and march under stupid leadership, waiting for some Boer bullet to stretch him on the veldt. Thousands of young Englishmen did that—and the English system of holding an Empire together with bullets made that necessary.

If Englishmen didn't go out and get shot every little while, there wouldn't be any title "King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India."

The King didn't do what the soldier does for his few pennies a day, or what the laborers do for their few shillings a week.

The King was a good-natured old man, very kind-hearted, conscientious in his work, self-indulgent in his play, very well paid, very well fed, denying himself nothing.

As Kings go, he was a success, honorable, deserving. But to compare him to the hardworking, self-denying men on whose backs the throne rests, is preposterous—even in Rudyard Kipling.

I sing New England, as she lights her fire
In every Prairie's midst; and where the bright
Enchanting stars shine pure through Southern night,
She still is there, the guardian on the tower,
To open for the world a purer hour.
—New England, by William Ellery Channing.

Now, Isn't It Tough?

Hazel Heartbreaker!

Radicals and Progressives

Silly Soolings by Republican Machine Agencies. Two Examples of the Progressive Legislator are fearful that, in the future, it is going to be harder to guide men.

But the ultra-conservative and always regular Republican newspapers know that their scoldings are not warranted by the facts. The Republican legislators are not becoming radical; they are becoming progressive and are bearing in mind the fact that, as legislators, they are merely the agents of their constituencies.

For instance, it would be a mistake to call Speaker Walker radical. It is true that he has gone beyond narrow Republican lines and has advocated giving the people a larger hand in the selection of their candidates for office. Surely, that isn't radical! It is only reasonable. It is in line with the demand of the spirit of the times.

Speaker Walker's arguments for a State pay-as-you-go policy and his pointing out of the dangers of a perpetual borrowing policy are in line with the spirit of progress. So is the law he fathered giving the Governor a hand in preparing the annual State budget.

Is it any wonder then that the progressive Republicans of the State, those who admire a man who does his own thinking, are demanding that Joseph Walker be considered as being in line for the Republican nomination for Governor?

As an example of the progressive legislator on the Democratic side, Representative Thomas P. Riley of Malden, frequently referred to as the leader of his party on the floor of the House, might be taken. Mr. Riley has advocated constructive policies of State administration, and he has been foremost in advocating measures that are demanded by the people.

He has worked diligently and spoken forcefully for the income tax amendment, for the popular election of United States Senators and for direct nominations.

And he has been convincing, too, because he has lifted up those questions beyond the realm of party matters and has drawn to their support a large element of the Republican membership in the Legislature.

Just because he has done these things is, very likely, the reason why prominent members of the General Court are suggesting that he would make a strong candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Big Dividends to Humanity

The District Nursing Association needs money to carry on its work. Its work is the kind that pays large dividends to humanity. Its special object is to provide medical attendance and care for poor people in their own homes.

The record of this organization is replete with good deeds. To save little children from death, to make aged sufferers as comfortable as possible and to do these things in a way that obviates the affliction of home-sickness, make up a line of charitable endeavor that should appeal to the hearts and purses of all of us who enjoy the blessing of good health and have the means to care for our own loved ones.

Donations will be gratefully received by Ingersoll Bowditch, treasurer, No. 30 State street.
